It was a completely sight in 1524 when the first European settlers came here: endless forests, fields, streams, rolling hills and small Indian villages. Those Europeans didn't settle in the area, because they went further to discover the 'New World'. In 1624 110 people came from Holland and settled down on the of Manhattan, but they didn't call the village New York, they named it New Amsterdam.

One of them called Peter Minuit went to the forest on the Northern tip of the island, and he met a group of Indians there. He wanted to buy the island and he gave them a pile of trinkets. As the says this was the cheapest bargain in history. The trinkets were worth of only $ 24. In twenty years' New Amsterdam had grown into a town of 1500 citizens. There was a wooden wall around it to the people and their houses from invaders. That's where the name of Wall Street comes from, the town ended at that of the island. In 1664, the British renamed the town after the Duke of York.

Agatha Mary Clarissa Christie is possibly the world's most famous detective story writer. She wrote 79 novels and several plays. Her sales outnumber those of William Shakespeare. However, behind her 4,680,000 words she was a painfully shy woman whose life was often lonely and unhappy. She was born in 1890 in Devon, the third child of Clarissa and Frederick Miller, and grew into a beautiful and sensitive girl with waist-length golden hair. She didn't go to school but was educated at home by her mother. Her father died when she was 11 and both she and her mother were grief-stricken. During World War 1, while she was working in a hospital dispensary, she learned about chemicals and poisons, which proved to be very useful to her in her later career. She wrote her first detective novel, The Mysterious Affair at Styles, in 1920. In it she introduced Hercule Poirot, the Belgian detective who appeared in many subsequent novels. Her other main detective was an elderly spinster called Miss Marple.
